INFORMATION

Parenting is a journey and from time to time each one of us needs a little help navigating.

Qld Family and Child Commission has developed a new website Talking Families which gives tips on ways we can better cope with the pressures of raising kids from taking care of ourselves, linking in with our network and community through to seeking help from a support service. Check out www.talkingfamilies.qld.gov.au

You may also like to visit www.oneplace.org.au which is an easily accessible directory of community support services to help Qld families get the right service at the right time.
